

NEWS

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: Benjamin Lewis
Perception, Inc.
301-963-7555

DataPath Introduces Fully-Automated, Electronic Substantiation of FSA-Eligible Items at Walgreens

Little Rock, AR (February 15, 2006) – DataPath, Inc., a leading provider of software solutions for employee benefits, today announced that its payment processing system will work with Walgreens, the nation's largest drugstore chain, to electronically substantiate over-the-counter Flexible Spending Account (FSA)-eligible items effective March 1st, 2006.

The service electronically tracks and verifies that items are FSA-eligible, which eliminates the paper-based substantiation and reimbursement process for claims administrators and consumers. For employees who use the mySourceCard[™] and myResourceCard[®], the program virtually eliminates the need to provide receipts when they use their flexible spending dollars at Walgreens locations nationwide.

Third Party Administrators will be able to decrease the number of letters requesting additional documentation to verify FSA purchases. When purchasing prescriptions and/or over-the-counter (OTC) FSA-eligible items using DataPath's payment card, the technology will match the items and automatically approve the transaction with no follow-up procedures.

"Making the process easier for our customers is something that DataPath is committed to," said John J. Robbins Jr., director of new product development. "By entering into this agreement with Walgreens, our customers will be able to use the mySourceCard[™] and myResourceCard[®] in a more effective and efficient way."

Walgreens is currently the only drugstore chain to enable a fully-automated substantiation for customers at its stores.

"This agreement will help our customers get the maximum potential savings from these accounts by making it simple for them to access their FSA funds," said Doug Egan, Walgreens divisional vice president of marketing services and research.

About DataPath, Inc.

DataPath, Inc., is one of nation's largest providers of Consumer Driven Health Plan solutions specializing in account-based administration systems. Since 1984, the service providers utilizing the DataPath systems have provided administrative solutions for over 1 million participants of FSA, HRA, HSA, and COBRA. DataPath is the only solutions provider to design and deliver a full Suite of administration systems for Cafeteria Plans (FSA, POP & DCAP), Health Reimbursement Arrangements, Transit / Parking Plans, COBRA, Health Saving Accounts, Credit Card, and Debit Card all delivered to the account holder participant through a single Internet portal, myRSC.com.

About Walgreens

Walgreen Co. (NYSE, NASDAQ: WAG) is the nation's largest drugstore chain with fiscal 2005 sales of $42.2 billion. The company operates more than 5,000 stores in 45 states and Puerto Rico. Walgreens also provides additional services to pharmacy patients and prescription drug and medical plans through Walgreens Health Initiatives, Inc., (a pharmacy benefits manager), Walgreens Mail Service, Inc., Walgreens Specialty Pharmacy, and Walgreens Home Care, Inc.

###